

Programs for Kindergarten through High School

PROGRAM 1

The Half Day

Behind the Pages

Widely known author and poet Terry A O'Neal, travels the world just to visit schools and share her talent and her love of arts and literature with young people. She is the author of children's books, YA fiction, and poetry. O'Neal has always valued the unique perspective of young people and has worked to encourage their energetic yet sometimes fragile aspirations.

This is an ideal program to promote poetry, reading and African-American culture. Terry's presentation includes an introduction of herself as an author and a peek into her personal life. She will read her children's book and excerpts from her poetry and fiction stories.

Program 1 consists of two 50 minute presentations.

Preparations

For Ms. O'Neal to speak at your school, there are a few things you'll need to have ready. You'll need the following:

- A single room where all the classes can be brought to. For obvious reasons, this presents less difficulty than having Ms. O'Neal switch rooms for each presentation
- The aforementioned room ought to have dimming lights or lights that may be switched off, in order to better accommodate
- An overhead projector with internet access
- Please inform us if any of these items are unavailable

In addition to supplies, these presentations work best if the children are properly prepared. This is best accomplished by having the children read at least one of Ms. O'Neal's books beforehand.
